

Ayşegül SELİŞİK, PhD

Assistant Representative at Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO)
Turkey

After working at managerial positions various departments within the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, Ms Selisik transferred to FAO as an Assistant Representative and continues her work for nearly a decade.

Field of Interest:

- Over 25 years of professional experience at national, regional and international level in respect to formulation, implementation, support, monitoring and evaluation of multi-disciplinary projects on agriculture, rural development, environment, income generation, marketing and value chain development
- She has acted as a key communicator on developing partnerships with public/private institutions as well as donor organizations
- Performed managerial duties and responsibilities in policy and capacity development, resource mobilization in Turkey and Central Asian countries with a special focus on sustainable food security, agriculture, rural development and natural resource management.
- She also served as a lecturer on food security, agriculture policy, agriculture extension, project cycle management and marketing at public universities

